AMERICAN DISTANCE EDUCATION CONSORTIUM (ADEC) AND APOLLIDON INC. SIGN IMPORTANT AGREEMENT TO EXPAND DISTANCE EDUCATION AT MAJOR US UNIVERSITIES TO PROFESSIONAL LEARNERS

July 12, 2010

Lincoln NE. — ADEC and Apollidon announce the signing of a new agreement designed to expand the reach of the over 65 prestigious member universities of the ADEC distance education consortium.

Apollidon's marketing expertise will build national and international awareness of the member universities' extraordinary education, expertise, programs, and courses designed to meet the lifelong needs of professional learners. Offerings will include workshops, certificate programs, courses, professional masters degree programs and other online customized offerings.

The focus will be on Learner-demand driven programs including such high interest areas as the environment, science, technology, and education that promotes job creation.

Dr. Janet Poley, CEO and President of ADEC: "We believe that ADEC members working together can provide broader access to exceptional education nationally and internationally. We can strengthen the quality, scale up and protect affordability. This cooperative relationship with Apollidon will enable us to realize these objectives. This is an extraordinary opportunity to contribute to meeting the changing educational requirements of professionals everywhere."

"We look forward to working with the ADEC organization and their outstanding member Universities. We think this is a great time to be a life-long professional learner and have access to high quality education from the foremost institutions in the world, wherever you live or work." John Everett CEO of Apollidon
